

YOUNG ARTISTS ON DISPLAY AT HENRY POOR

Young Artists Display Talent
Through the creative thinking of an art patron, wooden cabinet doors were turned into framed canvasses for student art work created at the Perry Art Camp this summer. Children participating in this unique program turned what were to be discarded cabinet door samples provided by Henry Poor Lumber into acrylic art masterpieces. Each student's completed painting was placed on display in Henry Poor Lumber's cabinet showroom throughout the month of June.

Art Camp for Kids

Sue Perry, an art teacher at Battle Ground and Mayflower Mill Elementary Schools, holds three one week long classes each summer. Perry began the program 12 years ago for students seeking to build skills and techniques in pencil, colored pencil, pastel chalk, watercolor, acrylic along with some three-dimensional work. The program has grown to now include over 50 elementary and middle school children from schools throughout Tippecanoe, Carroll and Clinton counties.

Artists Reception Held

To celebrate each student's accomplishment, a reception for parents, students and the community was held at the Henry Poor Lumber showroom on June 27th. It was a great opportunity to see just how creative our young artists can be and to support their efforts. Jay Andrew commented, "This is fantastic. To see what each of these art students have done is impressive. We really enjoyed having the kids and their families out here."

"PAINT THE RAIN" DRAWS BIG COMMUNITY SUPPORT

The "Paint the Rain" campaign has encouraged community groups and businesses to sponsor a "rain barrel". The barrels are decorated and then auctioned off to raise funds and awareness for local water conservation projects.

Henry Poor Lumber sponsored the barrel painted by a local Boy Scout troop. It was auctioned off earlier this month.
